EAGLE ROOFING PRODUCTS EXPANDS TO PROVIDE FULL SERVICE SUPPORT TO CUSTOMERS IN PACIFIC NORTHWEST

Company Expansion Meeting Increased Demand for Concrete Roof Tile in Northwest States and Western Canada

RIALTO, Calif., July 26, 2007 – Eagle Roofing Products, a division of Burlingame Industries, today announced its continued national expansion with the company's entrance into the Pacific Northwest market. A dedicated sales force will support the new territory, providing high-quality concrete tile roofs and solar systems to building professionals throughout Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana and Western Canada.

Paul Olson, previously Eagle's Southwest sales manager, will supervise the expansion from the company's office in Portland, Oregon. Having spent seven years successfully growing Eagle's concrete tile roof sales in Arizona, New Mexico and Texas, Olson will focus on building and managing a sales force that will meet the increasing demand for innovative concrete and solar roof tile systems in local markets throughout the Pacific Northwest.

"As a company that prides itself on listening to the needs of its customers and providing unsurpassed customer service, we are excited to be venturing into this new market to deliver the individualized attention every customer rightly deserves," said Kevin Burlingame, president of Burlingame Industries, "Eagle's experience in the roof tile industry and dedication to prompt, personal service ensures that we will be the company of choice for building professionals looking to differentiate their projects and add incremental value to their homes."

The company's growth into this new territory follows Eagle Roofing Products' recent success in establishing modern, automated high-speed manufacturing facilities in central Florida, Phoenix, Ariz. and Stockton, Calif. Pacific Northwest building professionals can select from a wide range of concrete tile roofs in a variety of styles and realistic colors appropriate to the local market. In addition, Eagle Roofing Products is the first concrete roof tile manufacturer to partner with a solar manufacturer, Open Energy Corporation, to offer its customers trend setting building integrated photovoltaics. Concrete tile roofs for the Pacific Northwest will be produced at Eagle's manufacturing facility in Stockton. With the capacity to produce enough roof tile to protect 57,000 homes annually, Eagle customers can rest assured they won't experience long delays before receiving product.
